As receiver, he will have exclusive and complete control of the road until the hearing, April 4th. Governor Aycock says he will resist to the utmost the proceeding for the receivership. In fact, he declares the order and whole proceeding to be the most disbolical that ever emanated from any court. THE LEWIS HOME WRECKED BY STORM

Family Had Just Left Room in Which Great Timbers

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

COMORN. VA., Feb. 28.—The old Lewis mansion, at "Fowkes," on the banks of the Potomac River, is little less than a wreck this morning. During a terriffic windsjorm that swept down the Potomac about 6 o'clock yesterday evening, one of the huge chimreys was blown down and one end of the house was demolished. Mrs. Edgar V. Lewis, her invalid husband and two daughters, the occupants of the time-honored mansion, had just left that end of the building and entered a room on the opposite side of the hall when the swful crash came. Immense timbers fell in the room adjoining the chiraner and destroyed everything in the room except a plano, which occupied a remote cornet. A great deal of costly china and many other urticles of value are under the wreckage.
"Fowkes" is one of the oldest residences it: King George, and has been owned by the Lowis family for many years, it overlooks the Potomac for many miles, both up and down, being one of the finest views and best known places on the river.

the finest views and best known places on the river.
The windstorm that wrought this terrible damage to the old mansion was one of the severest ever witnessed along the Potomac. A signed statement from the immediate vicinity says that if the family had remained in that portion of the building several minutes longer they would have lost their lives. It is hard to understand why the house did not burn after that portion of it, including the fireplace and chimney, was crushed in.
